

3 Characteristics of a Good Hypothesis

Positive

Hypothesis should make a positive statement about the existence of a relationship or effect, rather than a statement that a relationship or effect does not exist.

“File drawer Effect” (Rosenthal, 1979): in science many results remain unpublished, especially negative ones, producing a publication bias.