

Self-correcting Replication Crisis in Psychology

Psychology has come under criticism because a number of research findings do not replicate.

“Many Labs Replication Project”: An effort by psychological scientists around the world to attempt to replicate findings from 13 classic and contemporary studies (Klein et al., 2013)

↳ foundational studies that had mixed results when replicated

↳ some are unethical and should not be replicated